

Self-expression Body of Work Sun Print Cyanotype Photogram
 Transparency Negative Invert

PHOTOGRAPHY

ART

Students will explore self-expression through photography by creating a visual representation of aspects that define themselves by creating 10 different images. Students will start by filling out a brainstorming worksheet that will be possible ideas to photograph what defines them. Students will also research 10 other artists that inspire them and make a list they are interested in as a sketchbook activity. Once they have started to research artists, students will make 10 photographs to create a body of work that begins to define them. Students will then learn basic photographic editing skills on pixlr.com (free photoshop online). After the photos have been edited students will then write an artist statement about their five favorite photos that makes a body of work. Students will present their five photographs and artist statement for their classmates to view during a peer review. After the peer review students will then choose a favorite photo to invert and make into a digital negative. Those photos will be printed on transparency paper and we will sun prints with them. Students will be practicing their sun prints by making photograms first with cyanotype paper.

*Self-expression Body of Work Sun Print Cyanotype Photogram
Transparency Negative Invert*

PHOTOGRAPHY

WJ

Objectives:

Students will explore self-expression through photography by creating five final photographs.

Students will research ten artists that inspire them and their work in their sketchbooks.

Students will write an artist statement that will describe their body of work using the artist statement worksheet.

Students will invert their favorite final photographs to print on transparency paper and we will then sun print their image.